JOHN C. ENO NOT COMING BACK

At Least His Friends Know Nothing of Such an Intention.

No Keeps from Prosecution if He Doss Return.

The revival to-day of the perennia rumor that John C. Eno, the former President of the Second National Bank, contemplates an immediate return to New York for the purpose of surrendering himself to the authorities, occasioned a great deal of gossip in financia But little credence, however, is given to the report. At the office of Amos R. Eno, at 111 Broadway, an "Evening World" reporter was told this morning that no communication had been re-ceived from the exile indicating his in-tention to return.

ceived from the exile indicating his intention to return.

Young Eno is credited with getting away with $5,000,000. He fied from this city May 30, 1834, and two days later he was captured in Montreal. Rev. Father Ducey, pastor of St. Lee's Roman Catholic Church, of this city, who was found in Eno's company, was also arrested, but upon explaining who he was he was discharged.

The warrant on which Eno was arrested was found to be defective, and Eno was discharged. He was immediately rearrested, and during an adjournment an indictment was found against him for bringing stolen money into Canada. He succeeded in getting clear, and was not extradited. He continued to reside in Montreal, where, it is said, he has become very sopular and has accumulated a good-sized firtune.

Effects have been made by his wealthy and politically influential friends to have President Harrison pardon him, but without avail.

become very popular and has accumulated a good-sized fortune.

Effects have been made by his wealthy and politically influential friends to have President Hairison pardon him, but without avail.

The money taken from the Becond National was supposed to have been lost in stock speculation. The father of the defaulter made good, it is said, $3,500,000 of the defateation in order to protect the credit of the bank, which he had himself founded.

Assistant District-Attorney Lindsay said this morning that Eno could not hope to escape punishment by pleading the limitation of the statutes. He has been absent from the State continually since the warrant was issued for his arrest, and, therefore, his case cannot come under the limitation clause.

Mr. Lindsay refused to state whether or not at indictment had been found against Eno.
